That's just it, there was only one, stupid occasion when drugs were around her by my hand. When asked, she says she doesn't remember that incident. It should stand out in her mind, her dad, two women - one black, one white, being stupid, wearing nothing on the mirrored waterbed.

That morning, I got an early morning visit and didn't watch the time. She marched right in on that one.

Nothing else before or after. Once again, nothing, ZERO. Zero is a big number (to quote yur dad) when viewed in that perspective.

No clue what/where she thinks this stuff occurred.

<Sorry not true, she marched in on Jeremy drugging it up with Phil's girlfriend, for which, Phil evicted him from the Palatine IL house, with grandpa and I called by JLM to transport his possessions as they were removed from the house. Ask grandpa, Allen, Jennifer, etc.>

If that's what she says, especially about the drugs, then I think you have to respect her views on what happened and when. Drugs can have this effect on you where you don't really remember things so clearly... <hmmmm.>

Sent by Chris to me. Up until this, I had no clue about what Jennifer's issue(s) with me could be other than not giving her a car she purchased until the front end was fixed.

<Bullshit. He had total knowledge.>

RE: HEY

wow, thats a big question. i guess id have to start off by saying that i dont hate him, i just dont approve of anything that he does/did. i made the decision that i dont want him around my daughter. i dont think she needs any kind of inconsistancies in her life, she needs good reliable people to surround her and he just does not fit that request. lets see, i was first introduced to cocaine on accident when i was in 7th grade and i walked in on him and a friend of his weighing a lot of it up. it totally freaked me out. This never occurred as that kind of activity never occurred. i was watching his friends newborn at the time who, btw, is 17 now. i guess since i was introduced to it that way him and all his friends felt it was ok to smoke it in front of me or snort it in front of me. i also went on numerous drug rides with a friend of his. I think this is the bitch that I later found out was dealing, she offered to watch Jennie while I worked. I knew she used but was unaware of any business. he thought giving me money that he got from selling drugs would make up for all of this, which it didnt. especially when he didnt have the money to pay bills and rent and our electricity was always off, which meant cold baths and no phone and moving around. living in an apartment that was infested with ants when i was in middle school That was the apt owned by Bozo the Clown actor Bob Bell. then another apt which he could never seem to pay the electricity, Yup, still broke, not in any way related to anything illegal then we moved in with this crazy guy and i watched him kick jeremys ass cause he brought cocaine in the house and smoked it with the guys girlfriend. We moved in with Dennis, yes, he is crazy. His GF & I only shared my king sized water bed several times, there were never any drugs involved there. I was installing a phone system, purchased the equipment with a down payment from my customer and most of my available money. My "assistant", Todd, good for spot labor and knocking heads, stole the equipment, sold it somewhere. I now had to not only replace the equipment but also pay rent to Dennis. Eventually, the customer bought another system, not leaving me with enough for rent. Todd was now working with Dennis and I had to exit without paying. Dennis did try to provoke a fight which I talked him out of. Jenny was there but seems to have an altered version of the events. Today, Todd is long Dead, Dennis and I say hi and shake hands when we meet and I still take care of my friend's phones and security - you can catch 2 of his businesses at facebook.com/craftsman and facebook.com/kenmore . he has no common sense and being a parent now i could not ever imagine exposing audrey to any kind of that filth ever. he has no parenting skills what so ever, shouldnt have ever taken me from my grandparents when i was going into the fourth grade. left me at home countless nights (I know of 3 times I was too impaired to drive. In 6+ years, it's possible there were others. I also worked at places in the wee hours of the morning and I would sometimes get home when it was light out. I made a vow early on that my children would never see me under the influence of anything. The closest thing was frequent sleep deprivation.) while he was out drugging it up. oh yeah, he was also physically and verbally abusive (not that I am aware of). im very lucky that i got out as sane as i am. (She learned about hard work, working until the job is done, by direct input from me, she came with and climbed ladders with me. She learned to be clean and neat by doing the opposite of me. She learned the basics of survival well, even to tutor Audrey to read by age 3, just like her.) i hope the same for you. ive done a bunch of stupid things in my life, wish i had some guidance when i was younger, but im fine now, have been for a long time. thats why i dont hate, i just dont care which is probably worse, lol you asked for it.
